Entrepreneurship Education as a tool for Reducing Unemployment in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa

Entrepreneurship education goes beyond teaching traditional business concepts. It nurtures a spirit of innovation, creativity, and risk-taking, empowering business students to become proactive agents of change and encouraging them to think beyond the confines of conventional business practices. ECMPR has conducted a session for Business Students of Islamia College Peshawar, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa to provide them with a holistic understanding of the entrepreneurial journey, from idea generation and business planning to execution and growth. At the end of the session free books were distributed among the participants.

Pashto Translation of Tom G. Palmer's Book Peace, Love, & Liberty is in Progress

ECMPR has been working on the project of translation of the book in English into Pashto sponsored by the Atlas Network, USA. The main motive of this translation work is to ensure the sustainability of peace around the world to make it an abode of harmony and mutual respect. This can only be achieved by sensitizing people that could be a source of causing the change. This demands concerted efforts by utilizing the knowledge of the learned people and disseminating the message across the globe. As knowledge exists in different languages and seems to be a big hindrance in the dissemination of a highly demanded message. Therefore, translation of books like this one becomes the need of the day. The translation work is in the final stages and the launching ceremony will be held soon.
